7HEAVENS

Jila Peacock and Jonathan Harvey

The music of Jonathan Harvey (1939-2012), defies categorisation. Always reflecting a deep engagement with the metaphysical, he mixed techniques of medieval polyphony with cutting edge electronic sounds and textures to produce his mature style, - an alchemical music of exquisite simplicity and power. Despite being hailed as a hugely important figure in the world of classical music, Harvey's incandescent works have yet to be discovered by a wider audience. We hope that a new showing of the collaboration 7HEAVENS, on the 10th anniversary of his passing will inspire renewed interest in his life's work.

Help support our work

Britten Pears Arts transforms lives through music and preserves the unique heritage that continues to inspire our vision.

As a registered charity, ticket sales provide only 20% of our income, so memberships and donations enable our work to happen: from world-class performances, music for health, developing young artists, and continuing to support our communities across all generations.

We need to raise more than £2m through donations each year to continue to make the arts both uplifting and engaging for our local, national, and international communities.

Every donation, through memberships, legacies, trusts and foundations and businesses, supports our mission to:

- Foster creativity, developing the next generation of outstanding musicians.
- Grow and care for our international archive, the most complete composer collection in the world.
